CT-450

E.O. Jones House and Cemetery

320 Cox Road

Huntingtown, Calvert County

ca. 1890

Private

Erected about 1890, the E.O. Jones House is exemplary of rural vernacular housing constructed throughout Calvert County, specifically the I-house form. The wood-frame structure is remarkably intact, despite changes to exterior cladding and window sash. The property includes a family cemetery and two tobacco barns, illustrating the cultivation of tobacco and associated lifestyle of Calvert County residents during the late nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

The two-story dwelling has an I-house form with a three-bay-wide façade, central entry, and single-pile plan. The building is augmented by a two-story canted and two-story ell with one-story shed additions. The wood-frame structure, set on solid brick foundation, is clad with aluminum siding. The side gable roof is dominated on the façade by an open front gable set symmetrically over the central entry. The roof is sheathed in asphalt shingles and has slightly overhanging eaves with a boxed cornice clad in aluminum. Two ornately corbeled brick chimneys rise from the center of the main block, while an interior-end chimney rises from the north elevation of the ell. A one-story porch with a half-hipped roof and Tuscan wood columns extends the full width of the façade. The first story of the façade is marked by a single-leaf entry with four large sidelights. The end bays of the first and second stories of the façade have paired 1/1 vinyl- sash windows with square-edged surrounds. The center bay of the second story, symmetrically placed over the entry, holds a single 1/1 vinyl- sash windows with square-edged surrounds. A two-story canted bay projects from the west elevation of the main block. The three-sided bay is covered by a front gable roof and has single 1/1 vinyl- sash windows with square-edged surrounds. The two-story ell is augmented by one-story shed roof additions on the east and west sides. An inset porch on the east side has been screened. The ell and the one-story additions have single 6/6 wood-sash windows. A bulkhead basement entry is located on the north side of the house.

Prepare both a one paragraph summary and a comprehensive description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

SETTING

The E.O. Jones House at 320 Cox Road is located on the north side of the road, east of Huntingtown. The rural property, with mature trees and foundation plantings, consists of 1.84 acres of land. A paved driveway leads to the house from Cox Road.

PRIMARY RESOURCE

The two-story dwelling has an I-house form with a three-bay-wide façade, central entry, and single-pile plan. The building is augmented by a two-story canted and two-story ell with one-story shed additions. The wood-frame structure, set on solid brick foundation, is clad with aluminum siding. The side gable roof is dominated on the façade by an open front gable set symmetrically over the central entry. The roof is sheathed in asphalt shingles and has slightly overhanging eaves with a boxed cornice clad in aluminum. Two ornately corbeled brick chimneys rise from the center of the main block, while an interior-end chimney rises from the north elevation of the ell. A one-story porch with a half-hipped roof and Tuscan wood columns extends the full width of the façade. The first story of the façade is marked by a single-leaf entry with four large sidelights. The end bays of the first and second stories of the façade have paired 1/1 vinyl- sash windows with square-edged surrounds. The center bay of the second story, symmetrically placed over the entry, holds a single 1/1 vinyl- sash windows with square-edged surrounds. A two-story canted bay projects from the west elevation of the main block. The three-sided bay is covered by a front gable roof and has single 1/1 vinyl-sash windows with square-edged surrounds. The two-story ell is augmented by one-story shed roof additions on the east and west sides. An inset porch on the east side has been screened. The ell and the one-story additions have single 6/6 wood-sash windows. A bulkhead basement entry is located on the north side of the house.

SECONDARY RESOURCES

There are two barns and a cemetery associated with the property. The smaller of the two tobacco barns is located approximately 130 yards east of the house, close to Cox Road. Based on the construction of the barn, it appears to date from the second quarter of the twentieth century. It sits on concrete-block piers and is clad with vertical wood board. The front-gable roof is covered with sheets of corrugated metal. The side elevations of the tobacco barn have hinged wooden vents. A vertical board wood door pierces the west elevation. The second tobacco barn sits almost 100 yards to the north of the house, and is much larger than the other one. The barn appears to date from the second quarter of the twentieth century. It is set on concrete-block piers and clad with vertical wood boards. The gambrel roof is sheathed in standing-seam metal and has overhanging eaves and exposed roof rafters. There are two bays, each with a two-leaf vertical board wood door. The barn has a concrete-block addition, with a shed roof covered with sheets of corrugated metal. The family cemetery associated with the property is north of the house, and approximately thirty yards west of the second barn. It is completely overgrown with briars and not approachable at the time of the survey.
